ROMOLA gets her STRIPES by PAT CHERR

"OH, the whiteness of me!" sorrowed Romola Rabbit. "The monotonous pinkness and whiteness of me!"

Romola was a perfectly beautiful rabbit, all covered with lovely, soft fuzz, but she hated every bit of it. What Romola hankered after was G-L-A-M-O-R!

"I'm so . . . so drab-looking!" she would complain, surveying herself in the mirror. "The leopard has polka dots and the zebra has stripes, but what have I got? Absolutely nothing! I'm sick of me!"

The longer Romola surveyed herself, the more disgusted she became. Finally, she decided to throw caution to the winds! "Let them call me a peroxide rabbit," she said, "let them call me a beauty parlor beauty! See if I care! I'm going to have stripes!"

So saying, Romola set about painting her white fur in short, dark little stripes. When she had finished, she stood for a long time before her dressing-table mirror and beamed at her reflection.

"My, I'm quite the 'Tiger Woman'!" she mused. "Exotic, that's me! Wait until I step out on the avenue tomorrow!"

When tomorrow came, Romola hastened out on the "avenue", which was really the main path through the forest. Mincing coyly, she took her time in order to let everyone see her well as she passed along. "I can see I'm making quite an impression!" she thought, as the eyes of her neighbors followed her.

"Impression" was right! Everyone giggled and snickered at silly Romola, who took their attention for admiration. Rhoda, a friend of Romola, thought the whole thing too ridiculous for words. She decided to teach Romola a lesson!

Skipping over to Tyrone Tiger's house, Rhoda knocked at the door. Then she entered the house and had a long, confidential chat with Tyrone. And a plan was made!

As Romola Rabbit, feeling more irresistible and alluring by the minute, strolled slowly, she said to herself, "Oh, the beauty of me! The wonderful whiteness and stripiness of me! EEEEEK!"

That last remark was a squeek of fright. For suddenly, terrifyingly, a huge paw swept down and scooped Romola off the ground. When she had enough courage to open her eyes, she looked directly into the green, menacing eyes of Tyrone Tiger!

"Talbot!" boomed the tiger, curling his lips back so that his sharp, white teeth looked like big carving knives. "Where have you been? I'm going to punish you severely for running away!" Then Tyrone snarled.

Romola almost fainted with fear. At first, she couldn't speak at all, but after a brief moment, her voice returned and she whispered, "I . . . I . . . I'm not Talbot! I'm ROMOLA! Romola Rabbit!"

Tyrone Tiger looked at her closely. "Why, so you are!" he exclaimed, in feigned surprise. "I could have sworn you were Talbot Tiger, a very naughty child! Let me give you a piece of advice. Don't try to appear to be what you are not. It will get you into trouble some day!"

He set Romola on the ground, and the little rabbit scampered home as fast as she could, to wash off her silly stripes!

CR-RAK!

HEY!

DAT'S DE ONLY BALL WE GOT! WOT'LL WE DO?

I DUNNO!

I DO! SOMEBODY LEND ME A SHARP KNIFE!

FERRIS F. FERRET was pretty disgusted with things in general and with himself in particular. "Here am I," he told himself, "a first-class ferret. An A-1 ferret! And what do I ferret out? Nothing! Why, with my natural talents, I oughtta be a detective . . . a Pinkerton sleuth . . . a Scotland Yard official! But nothing ever happens in Little Town! If only it would, I . . ."

Ferris' thoughts were interrupted by the loud wailing of a siren. "AAAHOOOOO!" it shrieked, as the Little Town Police Car whizzed through the street directly under Ferris' window.

"Yes, sir," continued the frustrated sleuth. "If only it would, I . . . Hey! That was the police car! Somethin' must be stirrin'!"

Quickly donning a checkered cap and ramming a curved pipe into his mouth, Ferris went down the staircase two steps at a time, which was rather difficult since he was low-slung.

Breathlessly, he ran through the streets, following the wail of the police siren. At long last, he came up with the police car, which was parked outside of a magnificent mansion.

"Why, Mr. Mortimer Mink, the wealthy stock-broker, real estate man and international financier lives here!" Ferris wondered. "What can possibly be wrong?"

An angry bellow answered his unspoken thoughts. It roared out of a window, almost into Ferris' ears. "ROBBED, I tell you! I've been robbed! Some skulking, vicious criminal has stolen them!"

"That's Mr. Mortimer himself!" whispered Ferris. "He's been robbed, I guess. BOY! Here's my chance at last!"

Eagerly, Ferris ran across the lawn towards the house. He was in such a hurry, that he failed to notice a carefully roped-in section of land, and CRASH! went Ferris F. Ferret. He toppled the stakes holding the ropes, tripped, fell, and yelled.

But Ferris never yelled half so loudly as the Police Sergeant, who stood in the doorway of the house. "YOU IDIOT! YOU CARELESS, RATTLE BRAINED, FLAT-HEADED NINCOMPOOP!" he shouted at Ferris. "YOU HAVE SPOILED THE FOOTPRINTS!"

Shame-facedly, Ferris rose from the ground. "It . . . it wuz a accident!" he stammered. "I'm really very smart. I'm a ferret, you see, and we make the best kind of detective!"

"Detective?" laughed the Sergeant scornfully. "You couldn't find a haystack in a needle!"

"Oh, yes I could!" Ferris said indignantly. "And what's more, I'll prove it to you!"

And so saying, he marched straight through the doorway and into Mr. Mortimer Mink's house. The Sergeant followed Ferris, trying to stop him, but it was too late. Ferris had already entered the library, where Mr. Mortimer sat fuming with rage.

"Tak! Tak!" clucked Ferris. "Such dust! My, my!" And before anyone could stop him, he had whisked out a handkerchief and was carefully dusting the top of Mr. Mortimer's desk. "Carelessness, I calls it!" he muttered, as he brushed away the last speck of dust.

"HOWLING CATERPILLARS!" shouted the Police Sergeant. "Look what you've done! There go our only fingerprints! Oh, murder-r-r!"

Ferris blushed a deep, deep red. "Goodness, but I'm sorry!" he apologized. "The desk was so dusty, you know, and . . ."

Just then, Mr. Mortimer apoke up. "Sergeant," he demanded, "who's that you've got with you? I can't see an inch in front of me without those spectacles! To think that some thief-in-the-night has robbed me of them! I tell you plainly, Sergeant, that if you don't find them for me, I'll have you broken to a street-cleaner!"

"It's this ding-busted ferret, Mr. Mortimer!" answered the Sergeant. "He's goin' agin all the laws o' scientific detection. First, he meases up the footprints! Then he comes in here and wipes away the fingerprints! Calls himself a detective! Huh! If ya ask me, he must be the crook!"

"Oh, nonsense!" said Ferris indignantly. "How could I be a crook if I'm a detective? You're just being silly!"

Then Ferris turned to Mr. Mortimer and asked, "When were your spectacles stolen, sir?"

"This morning!" sputtered Mr. Mortimer. "How many times do I have to repeat it? Some low, sneaking sneke crawled in here during the night and snatched 'em!"

"Be calm, Mr. Mortimer!" said the Sergeant. "Relax! We'll have your eye-glasses back in no time. Maybe in a few months, even! We policemen have our methods, you know!"

"NO TIME? MONTHS?" stormed Mr. Mortimer. "Just what am I supposed to do in the meantime?"

"Be patient, Mr. Mortimer!" urged the Sergeant. "Ya see, there's lots to be done in your case. First, we gotta get a statement on the crime! Next, we assign a squad to guard the house, see? That's so nothin' else gets stole! Naturally, we gotta question everybody in the house . . . that's lookin' fer suspicious characters, ya understand. Then, there's clues. Always hafta look fer clues! Never can tell what we're gonna find! Might be a spy ring . . . or a murder gang . . . or a kidnapping plot . . . or . . . or SABOTAGE!"

As the Sergeant spoke, he puffed out his chest, which got very puffy indeed, since the Sergeant was a pigeon, and you know how THEY are!

"Oh, yes," he continued, "with me, bein' a detective is a science! I sin't like some nosey buttinskis that come ferretin' around! Then of course, there's the photographer. We gotta have him come up an' take pictures of the house. Gotta get the layout, ya know. Scene of the crime stuff!"

Suddenly, Ferris F. Ferret, who had been silently looking about him all this while, piped up, "Are ya gonna take a picture of Mr. Mortimer, too?"

The Sergeant roared with laughter. "That's the dumbest, foolishest, craziest thing I ever heard!" he laughed. "That's so stupid, Ripley oughta be told about it! What do we want a picture of Mr. Mortimer for?"

"Well," answered Ferris F. Ferret slowly, "it might help to find his spectacles. Ya see, they're hangin' on a black ribbon, around his neck!"

The 97 Pound Weakling

Who Became "The World's Most Perfectly Developed Man"

"I'll Prove that YOU, too, can be a NEW MAN!"

— Charles Atlas

I KNOW, myself, what it means to have the kind of body that people pity! Of course, you wouldn't know it to look at me now, but I was once a skinny weakling who weighed only 97 lbs.! I was ashamed to strip for sports or undress for a swim. I was such a poor specimen of physical development that I was constantly self-conscious and embarrassed. And I felt only HALF-ALIVE.

Then I discovered "Dynamic Tension." It gave me a body that won for me the title "World's Most Perfectly Developed Man."

When I say I can make you over into a man of giant power and energy, I know what I'm talking about. I've seen my new system, "Dynamic Tension," transform hundreds of weak, puny men into Atlas Champions.

Only 15 Minutes a Day

Do you want big, broad shoulders—a fine, powerful chest—biceps like steel—arms and legs rippling with muscular strength—a stomach ridged with bands of sinewy muscle—and a build you can be proud of? Then just give me the opportunity to prove that "Dynamic Tension" is what you need.

No "ifs," and "ands," or "maybes." Just tell me where you want handsome, powerful muscles. Are you fat and flabby? Or skinny and gawky? Are you short-winded, pepless? Do you hold back and let others walk off with the prettiest girls, best jobs, etc.? Then write for details about "Dynamic Tension" and learn how I can make you a healthy, confident, powerful HE-MAN:

"Dynamic Tension" is an entirely NATURAL method. Only 15 minutes of your spare time daily is enough to show amazing results—and it's actually fun. "Dynamic Tension" does the work.

Send for FREE BOOK

Mail the coupon right now for full details and I'll send you my illustrated book, "Everlasting Health and Strength." Tells all about my "Dynamic Tension" method. Shows actual photos of men I've made into Atlas Champions. It's a valuable book! And it's FREE. Send for your copy today. Mail the coupon to me personally: CHARLES ATLAS, Dept 2189, 115 East 23rd Street, New York 10, N. Y.
